A WORD FROM THE PRESIDENT

"There is nothing permanent but change." These words of the Greek philosopher Hiraclitus have become my mantra. One of the first tasks the Medical Board faced in this, my presidential year, was selecting someone to follow Ray Q. Bumgarner, the Medical Board's long time Executive Director, who retired on June 1st after 25 years of state service.

Mr. Bumgarner had led the agency's administrative operations since 1985. Under his guidance, the Medical Board's credibility with the public and professions was reestablished. He continually strove to assure that we had adequate funding and resources to accomplish our mission of protecting the health and well-being of the citizens of the State of Ohio. Mr. Bumgarner's leadership and extraordinary vision brought the Ohio Medical Board national recognition as a regulatory body that sets and exceeds national standards. We are grateful for his untiring efforts.

After an extensive nationwide search, Thomas A. Dilling, who has staffed the Medical Board in a variety of capacities since 1988, was our unanimous choice to succeed Mr. Bumgarner. A Cleveland native, Mr. Dilling is a graduate of St. Louis University and the Ohio State University College of Law. Mr. Dilling is a hands-on leader who is dedicated to public service. His broad expertise and extensive regulatory experience will greatly benefit the Board, its licensees, and the citizens we serve. We are pleased that he accepted this challenging responsibility.

In addition to the change in administrative leadership, legislative changes have recently expanded the Medical Board's authority to include two additional licensee groups: anesthesiologist assistants and acupuncturists. Read on to find out more about this and other recent changes in Board rules that may impact your practice.

From the Secretary's Desk

by Anand G. Garg, M.D., Ph.D., Secretary

Sometimes I wonder if television writers are pulling their plots straight from the Medical Board's disciplinary files. With each spin of the dial, I see TV doctors entangled in fictional romances with patients, pilfering drugs from those in their care, or violating any number of medical board rules and criminal laws.

The writers and viewers would probably be less interested in the plots of the other cases that land on the desk of the Medical Board Secretary.

Though mundane, they make up a fair percentage of the more than 2500 complaints the Ohio Board receives each year.

Recently, I've noticed an upswing in the number of complaints received in the following areas:

Failing to release patient medical records

Ohio law requires hospitals to give patients access to their medical records upon request. Many people assume that the same right extends to a physician's office records. However, notes made in treating a patient are primarily for the physician's own use and are considered to constitute his or her personal property. Nevertheless, the AMA's Council on Ethical and Judicial Affairs opines that, upon a patient's request, a physician should provide a copy or a summary of the patient's record for a reasonable fee. Further, a physician should not withhold a patient's record because of an unpaid bill. While all of this may seem to elevate office management over the provision of medical care, it is important to bear in mind that violation of a code of professional ethics such as the AMA's is a ground for disciplinary action against your license. Ultimately, your goal should be ensuring that the patient gets on-going, appropriate care.

Caring for or prescribing for family members

Rule 4731-11-08 of Ohio's Administrative Code directly addresses the sensitive issues involved in treating family members. The rule is based on the recognized principle that a practitioner's personal or emotional involvement hinders the exercise of detached, professional judgment in reaching diagnostic or therapeutic decisions. Accepted and prevailing standards of care presuppose a professional relationship between the patient and practitioner. By definition, this rules out self-treating and self-prescribing of controlled medications as an option. But what about family members?

With common sense, I believe, most of the problems that come before the Medical Board are avoidable.

In reviewing complaints, I have found that many physicians are challenged to maintain balance between the need to uphold appropriate standards of care and the desire to handle the medical needs of family members, particularly when controlled substances are involved. Rule 4731-11-08 prohibits physicians from utilizing controlled substances in the treatment of family members except in emergency situation. In those cases, proper documentation must be maintained.

Pre-signing prescriptions

It is a common misconception that the only physicians subject to criminal charges of Illegal Processing of Drug Documents are those with evil motives, who are practically street corner drug dealers. Although there are some physicians who intentionally misuse their licenses to make money by selling drugs or prescriptions, practitioners charged with Illegal Processing may not start out with bad intentions. Take, for instance, the busy physician who signs a pad of prescription blanks and leaves them with an office assistant whom he believes to be sufficiently well-trained to see follow-up patients or those with minor illnesses. The office assistant may even use the pre-signed blanks to issue medically appropriate controlled substance prescriptions to patients. Many physicians who find themselves in a scenario like this have lost sight with what the law requires of them. They think that their good intentions should excuse their conduct. The legal profession calls this the “pure heart, empty head” defense—and it is not a very good defense against charges of Illegal Processing of Drug Documents, a felony that could lead to the loss of your license.

Sexual boundaries; presence of third party during physical exams

The Hippocratic Oath includes this physician pledge: “Into whatever house I enter, I will . . . abstain from every voluntary act of mischief and corruption; and from the seduction of females or males . . .” Although the Ohio Medical Practices Act does not explicitly address sexual contact between physician and patient, a formally adopted AMA ethical opinion is quite specific, stating that any such relationship may exploit the vulnerability of the patient, obscure the physician’s judgment concerning the patient’s healthcare, and ultimately be detrimental to the patient’s well-being. The AMA also cautions physicians against sexual or romantic interactions with key third parties when such are based on the use or exploitation of trust, knowledge, influence or emotions derived from a professional relationship.

The Ohio Medical Board has a “zero-tolerance” policy in these matters. In the past decade, the Board has taken a series of disciplinary actions based on the overstepping of sexual boundaries by physicians who have become involved with patients or key third parties, such as the parent of a minor patient. Other state medical boards have followed suit.

Some of the complaints the Board receives occur in the context of physical examination, in the office or hospital setting. It is generally believed that most of these problems can be avoided by the exercise of common sense and adherence to the Medical Board’s advice to:

- have an appropriate third party available during examinations when the possibility of compromise exists;
- be alert to suggestive or flirtatious behavior;

- avoid any compromising situations; and
- avoid exploiting the physician/patient relationship for sexual or any other purpose.

Mid-level medical practitioners

Today’s healthcare environment includes an increased use of mid-level medical practitioners, such as physician assistants and nurse practitioners. State laws and Medical Board rules address this development by delineating supervisory requirements and responsibilities, as well as the duties and restrictions that define the scope of practice of these physician extenders.

It is incumbent upon the delegating practitioner to understand and follow the rules, avoiding any violations that could result in disciplinary action. This applies equally to the unlicensed medical assistants upon whom physicians may rely. Some tasks are simply not delegable. The performance of histories and physicals, for instance, is the practice of medicine, and cannot be assigned to unlicensed physicians or personnel.

Be cognizant. My view is that we should not create more headaches for ourselves. With common sense, I believe, most of the problems that come before the Medical Board are avoidable.

STATEHOUSE SUMMARY

The following summary of legislation offers you, as a Medical Board licensee, a look at changes in Ohio law that may affect your practice. Because this summary is not all-inclusive, we encourage you to periodically review relevant portions of the Ohio Revised Code (statutes) and Ohio Administrative Code (rules) to keep your knowledge and understanding of Ohio regulatory law up-to-date. Changes in the law are regularly noted on the Medical Board's website at www.state.oh.us/med; you may also wish to consult your state and local professional associations for further information.

Senate Bill 278 - On April 20, 2000, the Ohio Attorney General issued an advisory opinion to the State Medical Board pertaining to the legal authority of unlicensed individuals to assist in the administration of anesthesia. The Attorney General advised in part that, “. . . the administration, for compensation, of a drug or medicine, whether or not an anesthetic and whether or not for the purpose of inducing anesthesia, for the cure or relief of a wound, fracture or bodily injury, infirmity, or disease is part of the practice of medicine, as defined in R.C. 4731.34, and may not be delegated by a licensed physician to a person who is not authorized by statute to administer a drug or medicine.” This Opinion prompted the introduction and passage of Senate Bill 278, which requires registration of anesthesiologist assistants by the State Medical Board. The new law became effective on May 31, 2000. It defines an anesthesiologist assistant as an individual who assists an anesthesiologist in developing and implementing anesthesia care plans for patients. An anesthesiologist assistant shall practice only under the direct supervision and in the immediate presence of a physician who is actively and directly engaged in the clinical practice of medicine as an anesthesiologist. An anesthesiologist assistant shall not practice in any location other than a hospital or ambulatory surgical facility.

House Bill 341 - House Bill 341 requires registration of non-physician acupuncturists by the State Medical Board. This law became effective on August 10, 2000. The law defines acupuncture for these practitioners to mean a form of health care performed by the insertion and removal of specialized needles, with or without the application of moxibustion or electrical stimulation, to specific areas of the body. The acupuncturist shall perform acupuncture for a patient only if the patient has received a physician's written referral or prescription for acupuncture. As specified in the referral or prescription, the acupuncturist shall provide reports to the physician on the patient's condition or progress in treatment and comply with the conditions or restrictions on the acupuncturist's course of treatment. The acupuncturist shall perform acupuncture under the general supervision of the patient's referring or prescribing physician. General supervision does not require that the acupuncturist and physician practice in the same office. The physician must be personally available for consultation and in a location that under normal circumstances is not more than sixty minutes travel time from the acupuncturist. Consultation may be by phone.

House Bill 241 - House Bill 241 permits clinical nurse specialists, certified nurse-midwives, and certified nurse practitioners to prescribe drugs and therapeutic devices and accelerates termination of the advanced practice nurse pilot programs. This law became effective on August 10, 2000. A Committee on Prescriptive Governance was formed to draft and recommend to the Ohio Board of Nursing various rules, including the development of a drug formulary to allow qualified advanced practice nurses to prescribe drugs. The Committee is comprised of four physicians (including one medical board member), four nurses and four pharmacists. Physician appointments to the Committee are: Pitambar (Peter) Somani, M.D., Columbus; Gregory L. Ebner, D.O., Toledo; Michael Gyves, M.D., Beechwood; and Wayne Wheeler, M.D., Columbus.

MEDICAL BOARD RULES

The State Medical Board has adopted several new rules since the last publication of Your Report. Ohio Administrative Code (OAC) rules are developed by the Board itself and reviewed through a public hearing process. These rules are often recommended following discussion by Board committees. In addition, the Board reviews a percentage of its rules on an annual basis, in compliance with Ohio law. Pending, new and current rules are available for review on the Board's website at www.state.oh.us/med/. Once you have accessed the Board's site, click on Rules.

OAC Rule 4731-11-09

OAC Rule 4731-11-09 prohibits prescribing for new conditions to patients who have not been seen previously by a physician. This rule includes specific exceptions. The rule became effective on October 1, 1999. The rule was a response in part to the Board's concerns about physicians prescribing drugs over the internet without the benefit of first physically examining the patient. The Board views such prescribing as inappropriate and failing to meet the minimal standard of care.

OAC Rule 4731-6-30

OAC Rule 4731-6-30 sets requirements for the Board when licensing residents and clinical fellows to practice in an approved graduate medical education program. The amended rule became effective on September 1, 2000. These changes had previously been a part of the law under emergency rules subject to the Governor's approval. Ohio began requiring mandatory licensure for residents and fellows in 1999. These rules were amended to reflect changes in the process following the first year of the law's implementation.

OAC Rules 4731-18-02 & 4731-18-03

OAC Rules 4731-18-02 and 4731-18-03 specify that the use of light based medical devices (including lasers and intense pulse light devices) are considered the practice of medicine and may not be delegated. The rules allow for a limited exception to allow physicians to delegate the use of light based medical devices for the removal of hair under specified levels of supervision. These rules became effective on June 30, 2000.

OAC Rule 4731-11-04

OAC Rule 4731-11-04 was amended to clarify the requirements for the utilization of controlled substances for weight reduction. This rule became effective on June 30, 2000. The amendments followed a review of the rule shortly after significant changes had been made in 1998. The most recent amendments were, for the most part, clarifications to the previous rule, including a significant change to the rule's format.

OAC Rules 4731-4-01 through 4731-4-05

OAC Rules 4731-4-01 through 4731-4-05 concern the supervision and scope of practice of physician assistants. These rules establish a process to assist the Board in reviewing physician assistant utilization plans required by statute. They also define levels of supervision and enumerate various prohibited practices. This set of rules became effective on September 1, 2000, with the exception of Rule 4731-4-02, which became effective on October 31, 2000.

New Rule 4731-4-01(B)(1) and (2) adds certain functions that a supervising physician may authorize a physician assistant to perform pursuant to a standard utilization plan approved by the Medical Board. Since the Board has previously approved thousands of standard utilization plans, the Board felt that it would be more expedient to declare by motion that those standard utilization plans it had approved prior to November 8, 2000 shall include all of the functions listed in Rule 4731-4-01(B)(1) and (2) to the degree of supervision required by that rule, provided that the additional functions are within that physician's usual course of practice and within the physician assistant's ability and expertise.

New Rule 4731-4-01(B)(3) specifies the parameters of what a supervising physician may authorize a physician assistant to perform when "assisting in surgery" pursuant to a standard utilization plan approved by the Board. The motion by the Board stated that new Rule 4731-4-01(B)(3) will apply to all physician standard utilization plans approved prior to November 8, 2000 for those plans that specifically requested "assisting in surgery" as an approved function.

A physician who has not previously requested approval to supervise a physician assistant to assist in surgery may contact the Board for information on how to properly file such a request.
